ERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

sociation of which organization we gave a few days [illegible] shares [illegible] Homestead [illegible] the pioneer or [illegible] The purposes of these Homestead [illegible] are not speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands consequent on the cooperation of many individuals [illegible] holders and the advance in values of all [illegible] lands by reason of the expansion of [illegible] and demand for room outside of but [illegible] the city. The Riverside Homestead [illegible] has a fraction over one hundred and [illegible] acres of land situated just south of [illegible] on the east side of the river, the boundary line being about one mile from the [illegible] at East Portland. The tract has [illegible] strip along the Wallamet river half a mile [illegible] and another strip along the Oregon and [illegible] railroad half a mile in length the two being connected near the middle by two blocks with a street between them the [illegible] forming a figure not unlike the letter H [illegible] divided into 74 blocks 200 feet square (with [illegible] running at right angles) and 80 fractional [illegible] along the river front. The shares number [illegible] worth $60 per share. It will be seen that [illegible] thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold at the proper time [illegible] of the Association, shareholders [illegible] for the proceeds in proportion to the [illegible] of shares held. When all shares are [illegible] and the Association shall determine [illegible] do it, the choice of lots and blocks [illegible] put up at auction to the highest [illegible] the proceeds of such sales after deducting [illegible] original price of shares or lots, to be divided among the whole number of shares. [illegible] a person wants a particular lot or block, [illegible] willing to pay $100 or $800 premium (more [illegible] the case may be) he pays it and takes [illegible] or block as his individual property, the [illegible] being divided among the whole number [illegible] shareholders. It will be seen, therefore that [illegible] is so operative and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without making a dollar for every other equal holder. There is no chance for loss, unless [illegible] property, by some chance should depreciate [illegible] the first actual cost. Whether this is [illegible] happen in the case of this particular [illegible] land must be judged by each for himself, [illegible] the steady and unprecedented advance in real estate in this city and neighborhood at East Portland and vicinity, for the [illegible] or two, it seems hardly possible for [illegible] to go back.

[illegible] Riverside Association all proper precautions [illegible] have been taken to guard against [illegible] of shares. No person is allowed to [illegible] more than the number of shares representing [illegible] blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes [illegible] the operations of the Association are [illegible] in the same manner. The buyers of [illegible] may pay down $60 per share, which will [illegible] them from all assessments, or they may [illegible] quarterly with an assessment of $3 per [illegible] payable with the first installment, being [illegible] this latter case to another and only one assessment of $3 per share. Upon the [illegible] of the shares in full with no assessments [illegible] the holder is entitled to his certificate [illegible] proportion of all the profits accrued from [illegible]. No officer of the Association receives [illegible] for services except the Secretary who [illegible] per month, so it will be seen that the [illegible] must be light.

[illegible] part of the tract lying along the river is [illegible] plateau, nearly level about 50 to 90 feet [illegible] the water. There is no part of the front [illegible] blocks but commands a splendid view of [illegible] and the river for miles up and down [illegible]. That part of the tract lying along the [illegible] is, every foot of it of the richest loam [illegible] adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through the entire length of this wing of the tract, [illegible] the means of irrigation and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the tract. There is [illegible] fractional [illegible] the entire [illegible] these advantages it would seem [illegible] chance of [illegible] each shareholder [illegible] may get a little to as many lots as his shares may [illegible], or he may continue his interest undivided with the Association while the organization [illegible] exist. — Oregonian.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

[illegible] have been led to make these remarks from the [illegible] the subject [illegible] the outskirts of this city and East Portland [illegible] thoroughly [illegible] here among all [illegible] mentioned—the [illegible] East Portland—has already [illegible] published. [illegible] tract of land [illegible] over a mile [illegible] It is [illegible] like the letter H [illegible] of which a half mile [illegible] borders on the river [illegible] this portion of the homestead which is elevated [illegible] above the other prong of the H, but is still [illegible] fifty feet above the river [illegible] extended [illegible] of Portland, East Portland [illegible] The land is very [illegible] Wallamette river [illegible] and is partly covered with [illegible] timber. A [illegible] land just west of [illegible] rows of blocks [illegible] between [illegible] the west prong [illegible] (which has already been described) with that [illegible] full little [illegible] which is [illegible] under a high state of cultivation [illegible] its whole length [illegible] water [illegible] through [illegible] Daily Bulletin.

General Grant's Views of Bazaine's Surrender and the French Army

From the New York Herald Nov [illegible]

The views of General Grant on Bazaine's surrender and the French army, as published in a late [illegible] Herald, are very interesting, coming as they do through one of our most faithful correspondents, and embodying [illegible] the [illegible] of a profound military mind [illegible] a few brief and simple sentences. They are as full of [illegible] In this strain General Grant [illegible] Marshal Bazaine [illegible] in the battles of [illegible] Metz [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] rivers, with such an army as he had [illegible]. General Grant thinks there was no necessity for such a move; that Bazaine could have kept outside of Metz and maintained himself against all attack, and [illegible] the worst policy of all strategy. When asked what he would have done if placed in Bazaine's position at the time of the battle of Gravelotte, by which he was cut off from a retreat to Paris, the President answered: "Well, I would have forced round some way or other until I cut my way through the Prussian lines, and that Bazaine with his fine army ought to have cut his way through the Prussians instead of allowing himself to be shut up in Metz."

The battle of Gravelotte was fought a mile or two west of Metz. To that point Bazaine with his army had advanced when on the 18th of August he was intercepted by the Prussians and compelled to fight. He fought all day stubbornly and splendidly, and that night had [illegible] when he was driven back from his position. Under cover of the darkness, however, leaving the regular garrison to hold the city, he still had the choice of a retreat northward out of Metz [illegible] by the western side of the [illegible] of the battle [illegible] which the Prussian army [illegible]. This is what we suppose General Grant means [illegible]. He means that Bazaine should have [illegible] until he had escaped from the coils of the Prussian army, and here [illegible] the fatal mistake of Bazaine, fatal from his [illegible] first to the army of MacMahon at Sedan [illegible] for his chief, and next to his own army cooped up in Metz and, let us say, disarmed by starvation. By his continuous hammering and "fussing around" General Grant in our late civil war gained many a battle which, judging from [illegible] Bazaine would have lost [illegible] Belmont [illegible].

But leaving Bazaine, what says the President of this war in France? He says he never had a doubt that the Prussians would win from the superiority of the military system over that of the French; that the whole adult male population of the Prussians are trained, and disciplined. [illegible] against which [illegible] that the French simply had a regular army, and after that nothing worthy of the name. This [illegible] the Prussian reserves [illegible] first sent into the field all intelligent trained soldiers. And here we have from General Grant the secret of all these French disasters [illegible] during the empire the French system has discouraged the use of arms among the people, and [illegible] consequently with the destruction of her regular standing army France is defenceless against the trained legions of Germany. Furthermore, says General Grant, "we would never think here of [illegible] regular army at the start. We would first employ our volunteers [illegible] regulars for the last resort." This was the first Napoleon's plan in battle [illegible] Imperial Guard. General Grant, however, [illegible] that Napoleon the Third thought he had a sure thing of it in this war, and that for this mistake [illegible] all the rest might have been avoided even after the declaration of war. As far as they go, however, the views of General Grant on the French situation will command the highest respect even in France and Germany as the views of a soldier whose achievements [illegible] in saving the Union [illegible] the United States upon the solid foundation of universal liberty and equal rights, have made [illegible] the greatest [illegible] of all the [illegible] of the greatest [illegible] the nations.

It was a hundred years later they came into use in France, and nearly a century more before they travelled as far northward as Scotland. Their introduction into England was at first ridiculed [illegible] of Beaumont and Fletcher's plays your fork-carrying traveller is spoken of with great contempt, and Ben Jonson [illegible] the laugh against them. In repeated instances the progress of inventions has been thus resisted by the popular clamor and even opposed by popular violence. The first man who appeared with an umbrella in the streets of London drew down upon him the threats of the people and a pelting shower of mud and stones, which was worse than the rain against which he had spread the new fangled protection. The granite quarries commence a few miles above Richmond and continue at intervals fifty miles up the James river.

The Iron Track to Oregon

From [illegible]

We had an announcement a few days since that the cars are running in Oregon from Portland to Salem, a distance of [illegible] miles, that the railway has been built [illegible] further to the south [illegible] and that [illegible] the way [illegible] and that [illegible] City near the head of the Wallamet valley [illegible] from [illegible] to be reached by the cars next spring. This is the work of the Oregon and California Railroad Company. At the other end of the line the Central Pacific [illegible] Oregon [illegible] [illegible] have [illegible] seven miles from Marysville by the end of this year. Seven hundred miles by the wagon road [illegible] Sacramento from Portland, and of that distance 200 miles of iron track will be in running order by the beginning of 1871 with a wealthy company in each State pledged to hasten the work. For 200 miles the route is in the lowlands of the Sacramento valley, for 100 in the lowland of the Willamette valley, and 400 in the traverse of mountains and valleys lying between them. In the middle section of the road there are four chains to be crossed with the Umpqua, Rogue and Klamath valleys lying between them. The construction will be difficult and expensive in this section; the population is scanty; the agricultural and mineral resources so far as known are not great, and there is not much promise of any important way trade for many years. Yet the construction of the road is indispensable to connect the rich crest of California with the fertile valley of Western Oregon, and with the promising basin of Puget Sound.

The route for the railroad, across the mountain section, has not yet been finally selected. The main wagon road runs northwestward from the town of Shasta, crosses the Trinity mountain to reach the basin of the Trinity river, then crosses Scott mountain and descends Scott Valley on the way to Yreka. The descent into the Trinity Valley is not convenient for railroad work, so the route will probably be established further east. The [illegible] with the survey of the California and Oregon [illegible] at present is [illegible] Mount Shasta, which rises to a height of 14,440 feet, and with its outlying spurs makes a prominent feature in the topography of the northern part of the State. Its eternal snows feed half a dozen large streams, and among them are the Sacramento, which rises on its southwestern slopes, and the McCloud, a tributary of the Sacramento, rising on the southeastern slopes of the volcano, which stands a mile above all its surrounding ridges, and is the chief landmark for a radius of more than a hundred miles. This peak lies about 40 miles east of the meridian of the town of Shasta, so that the line round its eastern base would be very crooked, and considerably longer than one passing on the other side, yet distance must often be sacrificed to considerations of grade. So far as the explorations have gone, however, the [illegible] the Yreka [illegible] up the McCloud river and northeast of Mount Shasta [illegible] grade is [illegible] favorable than [illegible] up the Sacramento and west of the peak. The latter would besides better accommodate the local interests of the towns of Shasta and Yreka, both of which might be left a considerable distance to the west if the eastern route were preferred. There is still some thought, however, that Congress may authorize a branch road from the Central Pacific at Winnemucca to enter Oregon [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] the further [illegible] [illegible] the more convenient the connection will be.

Opposed to Thanksgiving

The New York World [illegible] feeling against Massachusetts [illegible] rather an extreme limit, when it sets up an opposition to Thanksgiving. It says: "Thanksgiving Day is not an exhibition of Christian piety but only of American piety. In its origin the peculiarity of the custom was justified by a peculiarity of circumstances, which is now [illegible] appropriate. Massachusetts was a small colony of fervently religious people [illegible] to shore cultivating a rather [illegible] soil in a climate subject to early frosts. The failure of a crop was the worst of calamities. The colonies were so distant from other inhabited parts of the world, so destitute of shipping, so entirely dependent on their own pursuit of agriculture, that the loss of a harvest entailed all the miseries and horrors of famine. Besides a bleak climate, a barren soil and an uncertain season, they were exposed to have their crops destroyed or burnt on the ground by the Indians. When their harvest had been safely gathered they felt that they had escaped for that year the direst of calamities, and their religious sentiment was so active that they made it the occasion of devout thanksgiving. There was nothing of formalism in the observance, but a genuine relief from deep anxiety expressing itself in unfeigned gratitude to Almighty God. If we are not mistaken, it is just possible that the country is even yet dependent to some extent on its agriculture. Providence certainly has quite as much influence over the prosperity of the country now as when the Pilgrims cultivated the sterile soil of Massachusetts. At all events it is no injury to the religious sentiment of the country, and has in many advantages in other respects. We have not so many holidays that we need begrudge this, and the nation is not so fond of religion [illegible] that it will become pious even by having a day of thanksgiving. Massachusetts may be a terrible State, but perhaps the people generally do not have the same dread of Massachusetts that the World [illegible]."

[illegible] RESOLUTIONS [illegible] CONVENTIONAL [illegible] [illegible] is an [illegible] way of honoring the memory of the dead to which, as a general rule, we have a very great dislike [illegible] the [illegible] adoption of "the usual resolutions" [illegible] most known by heart [illegible] type [illegible] [illegible] certainty for these words of course [illegible] all such documents. They begin with the expected [illegible] condolence to the family [illegible] to print in some [illegible] newspaper [illegible] purpose. For the most part [illegible] merely formal. [illegible] many cases they [illegible] pressing all that [illegible] really felt [illegible] they are only the [illegible] custom. Something is expected and [illegible] thing is done [illegible] meaningless [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] manufactured [illegible].

We know [illegible] we had [illegible] [illegible] that when any [illegible] with very few friendships [illegible] [illegible] as [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] professional [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and resolutions [illegible] [illegible] forcibly [illegible] [illegible] of their late [illegible] that lofty done his memory is passed out of mind, just as he was forgotten or taken with in the days of his life. We hope the day is not far distant when such resolutions will be shelved as funeral sermons have been.

What the Democracy will do to the Negroes

From [illegible]

We call the attention of Democrats and [illegible] to the following piece of savagery [illegible] the above caption taken from the [illegible] [illegible] all [illegible] [illegible] of the South [illegible] Republicans.

"The [illegible] Democratic party should [illegible] power [illegible] that has [illegible] been [illegible] they will hesitate about repealing at the first opportunity [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] odiously styled the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. While the negro is permitted to have a voice in the [illegible] [illegible] must be [illegible]. The Democratic party will give him no offices and will strip him of the [illegible] of elective franchise. [illegible] may [illegible] [illegible] who calling himself a Democrat [illegible] otherwise. When a Democratic [illegible] stoops to flatter them and court their sweet voices they must both [illegible] who do not treat him as an unblushing liar and knave."

The English of it is, the rebellion that got up the Old Guard need not go to the trouble of instructing the negro how to rate in the standard of morality any man under the title of Democrat. As far as the negro in the South are concerned, they know very well that liar and knave is the soul of the title of that party, but it must amuse the negro to read the above, for he will see the human [illegible] nature. A nature that could afford them nothing but slavery, fetters and the lash, now offers them advice. A nature that dissembled and kept down so much the devil in their own hearts that every inducement was used to win them over that the votes they hold might be used to crush them. They paid them high wages in New Orleans for merely walking in Democratic processions, that it might induce others to come there voluntarily. They got up suppers and sat with the negroes and ate with them. Speeches were made for their black guests to repeat when they would have gone home to their firesides with the treason that would unlock their race, [illegible] by champagne. They [illegible] and let them lead the van of Democratic Clubs and wrote speeches that they might deliver in Lafayette Square, and when all this failed, they taught them to be insolent to Republicans, black and white, heaping insult on insult, with the hope of getting up what they wanted of promoting a riot, that they might murder them indiscriminately. If as Old Guard says, the Democrat who stoops to flatter them is an unblushing liar and a knave, we can now add from the conviction given by his argument, and from our own experience, two more terms of which the party seems as worthy, namely hypocrites and murderers. But for [illegible] bitterness shown by the English [illegible] who, as the Old Guard or [illegible] whichever they please to call it, we do not believe such articles can have the full sanction of the Democratic party. If the advice which the Guard gives the negroes had been given years ago to the Irish and Germans whose votes made Democracy what it was, and is, how much more telling and home hitting it would be. Let the Irish and Germans read it now and act on it as the Democrats want the negroes to act. That is to claim their just portion of official patronage and as they advise the negroes, let them not be put off with inferior positions. "Mark that, ye who take the place of negroes with the Democrats, ye who can scarcely get any higher than a street sweeper or police man, a door keeper or messenger, and who were once not allowed to vote or go near the polls at all." We think as an Irishman we are capable of giving you better advice than may come from such a source as the Old Guard, and that is to read the Guard's watch words and take them to yourselves who are by far worse treated by Democrats than ever the negroes were treated by Republicans.

The Future of Germany

From the New York Herald

The reported armistice enables us to assume that a few weeks will, in all probability, terminate the terrible war between France and Germany, place Prussia at the head of the German confederation and establish her as the leading power of Europe. So rapidly has history been creating itself, that our readers can hardly yet realize to themselves the astounding political changes which have been taking place during the past summer and in the last few years. Four years ago the long continued struggle for supremacy between Austria and Prussia came to an issue in the war of 1866. On the 21st and 22d of June of that year the two Prussian armies of Silesia and Saxony crossed the frontiers of Bohemia much as this summer they passed the boundaries of France under the same Princes and guided by the same subtle brain. In precisely one month they camped before Vienna and Pressburg, with the ancient Empire of Austria at their feet, while another army had forced the Hanoverian troops to capitulate, had beaten successfully the army of the Confederation and the Bavarian corps and had [illegible] to the heart of Bavaria. In less than a month Prussia had put five hundred thousand men on a war footing and had swept over Germany from the Rhine to Hungary.

Yet in that year Prussia was only the fifth of the Great Powers, with less than half the population of either France or Austria, and only a quarter of that of Russia. Her revenues were not a quarter those of France, and even the new Kingdom of Italy contained more inhabitants and boasted double the income. She came out of the six weeks campaign with thirty millions of inhabitants and substantially holding all Germany from the Baltic to the Main. In the present summer in one month from the time her two Princes had their armies over the French frontier, she had broken the military Empire of Napoleon and held the Emperor prisoner, and in less than two months had taken the two strongest fortresses in France, captured some three hundred thousand prisoners and an immense amount of war material and invested the capital of her enemy's country. Probably less than in three months from now will she be returning, victorious from shattered and broken France. Such campaigns as these were before unknown to modern history, for even Napoleon's wonderful campaign of Jena, ending in the prostration of the Prussian Kingdom, was child's play compared with the prodigious forces managed and exerted in this war. A nation which has developed such enormous and well directed energy is thus not of course only in the beginning of a grand and long [illegible] career of progress. The question will continually occur for [illegible] observers, What is to be the issue of all this? What sort of power is this nation so suddenly arrived at the height of great [illegible] in relation to modern [illegible] Europe? Henceforth in all probability its interests are to be absorbed in a [illegible] united Germany, but what stamp will the Prussian [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the most opposite elements [illegible] has the privilege of [illegible] [illegible]. Military [illegible] the constitution that is [illegible] every [illegible] from which neither high birth nor wealth can excuse him, the only exemption [illegible] [illegible] service being gained by education. Then the new popular representation in the Parliament of the Confederation is so complete and widely extended that even the laboring classes in the last Diet were represented by their own delegates. To a certain extent the civil service is also democratic inasmuch as it is open to competitive examinations, though here the various features of Prussian social life have some influence. West of Prussia also the Rhine Provinces and the new acquisitions Hanover and Hesse Cassel are democratic in their social organization, the soil being divided into many small ownerships and the people being liberal in [illegible].

On the other hand the old military and feudal element, in which the Counts of Brandenburg built up a kingdom, is strongly represented in Eastern Prussia. Here the soil is divided into large estates and held by the country gentry who possess an unbounded influence over their tenantry. Here is the [illegible] and loyalty and bigoted Prussian [illegible]. The [illegible] office holders [illegible] up of representatives of Prussian "Junkers," or the younger sons of noble families. The army, too, from its local organization, is frequently officered by the resident country gentry. And as a climax to all the monarchical and conservative elements of the State the royal family have proved themselves, by economy of government, military genius and their readiness for personal sacrifices, true "kings of men," and worthy to command a brave people who respect and love them. It would need a generation of royal idlers and do nothings to wipe out from Prussian memories the recollection of what the Hohenzollerns have risked and accomplished for Prussia and Germany during the last four years. To add to all these complex elements in the Prussian State, is the learned class which has so great an influence over the young mind of the nation, an influence at once liberal and conservative. To predict the effect of all these various forces upon the constitution of the future united Germany, would be a rash undertaking. The influence of Baden and South Germany will undoubtedly be liberal and united with the liberal elements of Western Prussia and the university towns, we may hope, not for a necessarily rapid democratic progress, but for what is far better, a steady rational advance of all Germany in the paths of constitutional liberty.

CURRENT NOTES.

The persecution of christians in Damascus has been revived and fears are entertained that it will culminate in another massacre.

The President has directed that another census be taken of Philadelphia. The cause alleged is that in consequence of the absence throughout the summer of citizens, the population of the city was not fairly ascertained.

A movement is on foot at Chicago, aided by ex-Gov. Bross, to establish smelting works in that city, for the reduction of silver and gold ores from the Western mines. Preliminary steps for the formation of a stock company have already been taken.

A prominent banker at Berlin has been arrested for subscribing to the French loan, though it was proved that he acted on an order from an Italian banker who was to cover the transaction by a remittance direct from Italy to London. The banker was held in custody, the authorities refusing 50,000 thalers bail.

A New York dispatch of the 14th has this: The steamer Vanderbilt arrived this afternoon, laden to the water's edge with guns from the United States Arsenal at West Troy, for France. This makes the fourth load the Vanderbilt has brought and guns are being shipped by numerous barges besides and from here forwarded by every French steamer.

A Metz letter of October 29th, gives the story of its surrender. It says that Bazaine totally failed in his duty—that hunger, and scurvy, and typhus caused to surrender, and that the garrison suffered intensely. Having no faith in their commander they deserted in crowds, with his knowledge, as he believed their departure would give him fewer mouths to feed.

On the 14th inst Secretary Boutwell had a protracted interview with the President, concerning financial matters. The Secretary has nearly all the material and statistics completed for his forthcoming report. The President has all the estimates of the different Secretaries for the next fiscal year. They will be considerably below the estimates of last year. The Navy estimates are $10,000,000 below that of last year.

A desperate fight took place in the woods at Mount Holley, 18 miles from Rutland, (Vt.) recently, between a gang of 1[illegible] French wood cutters and three officers who were endeavoring to arrest them. The Frenchmen were armed with axes and cut and beat the officers in a brutal manner, nearly severing the wrist of one, besides inflicting severe wounds on the head. Another was knocked insensible by a blow of an axe across the face, after which they kicked and beat him horribly about the face and body. The Frenchmen escaped into the mountains, but thirteen of them were arrested next morning.

A late Washington special says an Oregon delegation representing the debts of that State, which amount to $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, are here pressing Senator Williams for Chief Justiceship of the Court of Claims vice Casey. He says they speak confidently of success though that seems hardly possible. The understanding a few weeks ago in official circles was that at the end of this Senatorial term next March Williams would be offered the position of Attorney General, in place of Ackerman who is anxious to retire to private life through ill health.

The compositors' cases in the mission printing house in China have each over 6,000 compartments for the reception of the numerous letters of the Chinese alphabet. The cases are built in the form of an amphitheatre and the compositor stands in the middle. Every letter that he sets is selected from the 6,000.

The Great Northern Highway

The construction of the Northern Pacific railway is a work which it is now confidently anticipated will begin at the western end of the route early next year Already the [illegible] of several hundred miles in the [illegible] division is nearly completed or at least well advanced and recent announcements by the company leave little or no doubt that the work on the western division will shortly commence The precise locality where it will begin is not yet known but almost without question it will be between this city and Puget Sound

It is a recognized fact among the great commercial movements that characterize and render notable the present time the most important, both in the amount of capital involved and the character and extent of anticipated results is the building of the Northern Pacific railway with its branches feeders and connections The Suez canal constructed under the auspices of the French Government, cost about sixty million dollars The Union Pacific railway, extending from Omaha to Ogden, a distance of 1,032 miles and the Central Pacific, completing the line from Ogden to Sacramento, 743 miles farther did not cost more than an equal amount The Northern Pacific railway, controlled by a single corporation, will span the continent from deep-water navigation on Lake Superior to tide-water on the Columbia river and Puget Sound, a distance of about 1 7 0 miles and the branches already projected will increase the total length of the road bed to nearly two thousand three hundred miles The cost of construction and rolling stock will not fall far short of one hundred million dollars

From a recent elaborate article on this great enterprise and on the plans and objects of its projectors, we summarize thus It is the comprehensive design of the projectors of the Northern Pacific, not simply to build a railroad from lake to ocean, and then wait for results, but to render results certain by (1) securing connections with the railroad systems of the Pacific coast and Atlantic States, and with the commerce of the Pacific ocean, (2) by constructing a series of lateral branch roads to the north and south of its main line, which will drain the entire Northwest between latitude 43 and Central British Columbia, (3) and by organizing such a thorough, wise and humane system of emigration from Northern Europe and the thickly peopled portions of our own country as will settle and render speedily productive the vast belt of fertile lands tributary to the road and extending across the continent. During the years occupied in its construction the road will give employment to thousands of men, and create a large demand for everything that our people manufacture or produce

It is impossible that such an enterprise managed by the sort of men that control this one, should not vastly benefit the whole country, while specially and vastly benefitting the region of the Great West This greatest of commercial projects, viewed as a matter of national import, is entitled to the same hearty sympathy and confidence that greeted the first Pacific railroad, and the recent attempts in Congress and by a portion of the press, to represent the Northern Pacific company as an insatiable devourer of the public lands, are as unfair as they are unfounded For the Northern Pacific company has only received a land grant equal in amount to that given to the Union and Central It is true the land is generally of a better quality but this only indicates that as the country through which the route passes is better than that lying along the Central route, there is more need for a railway on the Northern route and consequently a greater necessity for a grant of lands to build it And then it is to be remembered that the Northern Pacific receives no subsidy of bonds, guaranteed by the Government, as the Union and Central did We observe that among the journals most bitter in their denunciations of this grant of lands to the Northern Pacific are those of California They call it wholesale robbery of the public domain, and never tire of denouncing it To say the least, it looks rather insincere and ungenerous for the people of a State who have been brought into direct railway communication with the East by the beneficence of the Government, to be protesting against anything being done for their neighbors, though those neighbors have only received the favor of a grant of lands while they themselves have not only had an equal land grant, but an immense money subsidy into the bargain.

The future of Oregon as that future is destined to develop in consequence of the construction of the Northern Pacific railway, is full of results of incalculable moment and value. We are situated precisely where the greatest of these results are to be developed From the moment work begins on the road we shall feel its quickening influence in the enhancement of the general prosperity The future is full of hope and promise for our State, and the construction of the Northern Pacific railway, with the prosecution of other lines now in progress or projected within the State, will inaugurate the new era that many of us have been waiting for so long

Some Census Totals

It is now conceded at the Census Bureau, that the total population of the United States will fall below 40 000 000 It may not exceed 38,000,000. Below are some totals for several States Some of them are official and complete Others are nearly complete and the balance estimated from the first figures of the Census Marshals

King William of Prussia

A highly interesting article on King William of Prussia is given in Appleton's Journal of a recent date The King is described to be [illegible] a Prussian [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] wilful [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] It is said that [illegible] the distinction of [illegible] great [illegible] than [illegible] Frederick [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] disciplinarian and a capable organizer The most interesting parts of the sketch are those which give an outline of his political career Here is what is said of his conduct during the revolution in Germany

Thirty years ago his brother being then on the throne William was invested with the military and civil governorship of Pomerania and in this satrapy he remained until in 1848 the third French Revolution broke out These French Revolutions have always been ugly events to the German Princes That of 1848 was infectious spread into Prussia and King and Princes were fain to flee Berlin as Louis Philippe had done Paris William by a sort of [illegible] [illegible] to his royal brother had affected liberalism and had hobnobbed with the radical university party but found it nevertheless wise to pack up and hastily depart for the asylum which free England provides for royalties in distress Moderate opinions, however, soon got the upper hand in Berlin and in such good odor was William's liberalism at that day that he was actually elected a member of the Constituent Assembly, charged with making a Constitution for the German Republic In another year Berlin and Prussia had slid back into monarchy by the energetic [illegible] of Prince William in the streets of the capital for he shot down the people there much as Napoleon III did on the days succeeding the coup d'etat William was made probably in consequence of this "energetic action," and of his rallying so stoutly to the monarchical party, Commander in Chief of the Prussian forces operating against the insurrection in Baden, which was whiffed off in Prussian grape and smoke in a twinkling Still William professed liberalism though protesting thus "energetically" against Democracy and, when his brother's second and hopeless attack of insanity came on in 1858 he was called upon to assume the title and powers of regent of the kingdom The confident and obstinate way in which he grasped and tightly held the reins of authority, proved that he was determined to govern as well as reign The Ministry of Frederick William IV, whom he found in power, were of the Kreuz party, the party of the nobles and proprietors and reactionists These with little ceremony he bowed out of office and called to his counsels a liberal cabinet, with whom he tolerably well agreed, as they took care to agree with him On the second day of the year 1861, the insane king died, and in the following autumn William crowned himself at Konigsberg, the hereditary coronation-place of the Kings of Prussia, at the same time proclaiming the fine old absolutist doctrine of the divine rights of kings a doctrine of domestic infallibility in the palaces

Then follows an account of the King's political summersets It is the old story of liberalism in the Crown Prince and absolutism on becoming King

He very soon learned that between being the younger brother of a king, and a king, there was a vast difference To coquette with liberalism in the one case was perhaps harmless enough but now the bulwarks of the throne were the aristocrats William's summerset was as sudden and complete as an American politician's He allied himself strictly with the old Kreuz party to which he had shown himself so hostile and the Chamber of Deputies being (by his very influence) largely liberal he soon embroiled himself with that body and was at this epoch one of the most heartily detested sovereigns in Christendom He disdained to grant constitutional concessions, or to sanction political reforms and what with the increasing rancor between a proud court and a persistent majority of the people, Prussia seemed really to be drifting toward civil war, when a new actor came upon the scene Count Otto Von Bismarck was called to the office of Prime Minister in 1862 William had blundered upon the greatest good fortune obtained by any Monarch of the age Bismarck seems to have swept the whole situation at a glance He seemed to chart off facts, causes and remedies, as upon a map He took the helm with a bold—indeed a rude—hand Within six months after his assumption of office, Prussia seemed on the very precipice of civil strife Bismarck seemed to be a stern and relentless tool of the King's impatient despotic temper all the while the King was becoming his tool and he was winning to his own hands the real power He dissolved Legislative Assemblies, removed Ministers, snubbed the nobles, domineered over parties. At just the proper moment, he diverted the public mind from internal discussions by undertaking with Austria the spoliation of Denmark That highway robbery accomplished, Bismarck worked to gain for Prussia the preponderance in the confederation Austria was in the way a rival backed by nearly every one of the little States Bismarck prepared for years for that war of 1866 it was fought against the King's inclinations and its speedy and triumphant issue made Bismarck more indispensable than ever to the sovereign From 1866 to 1870, Bismarck was preparing for the next war he knew he must undertake—that with France The German empire could not be accomplished, Germany could not be absorbed under the haughty crown of the Brandenburgs, until France was crushed To that point we have arrived

The sketch closes thus

The King has been rather averse than otherwise to each of these wars, for singular enough though warlike in his tastes, he does not seem fond of war in practice With the character which we have described him to possess it is a wonder that he should become as dough in the hands of a keen crafty far sighted minister absolutely devoted to the interests of his dynasty There can be no doubt that each war has progressively strengthened that dynasty A victorious royal house with the chief victorious general in its heir sits firmly on the throne As against the German liberal party the victories over Austria and France have terribly strengthened the autocrat, and the stern and haughty military aristocracy of which he is the head The King's personal qualities—his bonhomie and bluff good nature his interest in what is going on his enthusiastic love of country—do not tend to lessen that strength Under such a sovereign with an heir apparent like him popular and victorious destined to succeed him and with such a minister it is probable that we may ere long see a united Germany while free Germany is only one of the possibilities of the future

WAR MISCELLANY

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] under our [illegible] eyes Is this the end of all the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the Great Monarch [illegible] Emperor Napoleon standing behind the chair of King William at Versailles, in a recent cartoon published in England

The Hanoverian [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Von Der Tann against [illegible] army of the Loire and whose name is frequently mentioned [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fought [illegible] gallantly through the war for the [illegible] in the Western armies under Grant and Sherman He went [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] his [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] when he present war [illegible] broke out several months ago

From the Cologne Gazette of October 11th we learn that the total German losses up to that date were as follows Killed 22 officers 7 6 [illegible] wounded 1 [illegible] officers 32 [illegible] men missing 13 officers and 3 [illegible] men—grand total 2 [illegible] officers and [illegible] men The significance of these figures may be inferred from the fact that at the single battle of Gettysburg we lost nearly one half that number though the Federal forces did not exceed 80 000 The Confederates on the other hand lost 5 000 men in killed wounded and missing It would seem therefore that notwithstanding their formidable preparations and improved arms the French at least are not doing much more than playing at war

A letter from General Trochu to the Mayor of Paris, on the defense of the city ended with the following words "I conclude M [illegible] Marie this statement with a few reflections In the month of July last the French army in all the splendor of its strength, passed through Paris amid the shouts of 'A Berlin! A Berlin!' I was far from sharing their confidence and alone, perhaps among all the general officers I ventured to tell the Marshal Minister of War that I perceived in this noisy manifestation [illegible] upon a campaign as well as the means [illegible] the elements of a gross disaster The will which at that time I placed in the hands of M Ducloux a Notary of Paris will one day testify to the well grounded presentiments with which my soul was filled"

The Springfield (Mass) Republican has a review of Bazaine's conduct It says he seems not to have risen to the hight of neither treachery nor anything else great He preserved no discipline in his force and exercised no intelligent control of the commissariat of the city He sulked in retirement and is now described as looking much oldened by his experience His black mustache is bleached and his countenance sallow and gloomy He was one of the small men whom Napoleon's smallness made fashionable under the late regime, and who even now cannot comprehend the character of the gigantic sham of which he was a delighted fraction When driven to surrender, he undoubtedly hoped to make a virtue of his dire necessity and father negotiations that would restore to France peace and the empire But the defeated and captive soldier of an unseated dynasty is hardly the "power to treat with" that Bismarck is in search of

Victor Hugo, Again

On the 2d of October Victor Hugo beat his gong again He issued an address which was designed to stir up the Parisians and frighten the Prussians but we have seen no evidence that either object was accomplished We can give only a small portion, and begin with the first sentence

It seems that the Prussians have decreed that France shall be Germany and that Germany shall be Prussia that I who speak born in Lorraine shall be a German that it shall be midnight at noonday that the Euphrates, the Nile the Tiber and the Seine shall be affluents of the Spree that the city which for four centuries has been the light of the world has no more reason for existing and that Berlin will suffice that Montaigne Rabelais, d'Aubigne, Pascal, Corneille, Moliere Montesquieu, Diderot, Jean Jacques, Mirabeau, Danton and the French Revolution never existed that we have no more need of Voltaire, since we have M de Bismarck, that the Universe belongs to the conquerors of Napoleon the Great and Napoleon the Little that henceforth thought conscience, poetry art, progress, intelligence shall begin at Potsdam and end at Spandau that there shall be no more Paris, that henceforth the human race shall only be a second rate power

From such a beginning he passes on to an address to the Prussians He is 'sorry for them because such a dreadful fate is awaiting them With an air of patronage that would be insufferable in a victorious commander but is absurd from the pen of a noncombatant high flyer of the conquered nation he tells them that "we are going to await your coming You will have to march very softly for Death is listening He has a very delicate ear, this terrible watcher Come on and attack us! Come out of your hiding place Show yourselves You have come to the end of your easy successes, —and so on in a vein of bantering defiance which school boys call 'sauce' Having finished his impudent address to the Prussians he returns to his own countrymen in the following characteristic passage

"Try it!

"Winter is coming

"And France

"Winter—that is to say, snow, rain, frost hail ice France—that is to say, fire

"Paris will defend herself madly

"To fire, all of you, citizens! There is henceforward only France here and Prussia there Nothing but necessity exists What is the question of to day? To fight What is the question of to morrow? To conquer What is the question of every day? To die

There is much more of the same sort but we think the above is as much as readers will care to take at a single dose

Stuart Mill on the Chinese

A year or more ago a letter written by John Stuart Mill to a citizen of California was published in that State, with a grand flourish of trumpets and with editorial comments the object being to show that that noted philosopher and economist fully endorsed the demagogisms of the Democratic party on the Chinese question The letter was perverted from its true meaning according to the Democratic custom Editors of that party in their zeal to make a little political capital misrepresented the document in all essential particulars Subsequently Mr Mill became aware of the manner in which his statements had been mutilated and perverted by a portion of the American press The letter in the form which had been given it by the Democratic papers of this country was inserted in the Chicago Tribune with editorial comments Some time afterwards the following additional letter from Mr Mill appeared in that paper which corrects the misrepresentations of the Democratic press in respect to the former one

AVIGNON February 14 1870

H [illegible] WHITE—Dear Sir I suppose I am indebted to you for sending me the number of the Chicago Tribune which commented on my supposed opinions respecting Chinese immigration Nothing could be clearer or fairer than the editorial statement of the reasons which in my opinion might justify the exclusion of the immigrant laborers of a lower grade of civilization than the existing inhabitants But I never said that in America and in the present circumstances of the case it ought to be done My letter on the subject to a California citizen who had asked my opinion has been so much misunderstood that I cannot but think the copy of my letter which I understand appeared in the newspapers must have been a mutilated one I distinctly declared that in my opinion the right course to be adopted is to endeavor by education to bring the rising generation of Chinese up to the level of Americans If there is little or no rising generation (the Chinese not being permanent settlers) I said that in that case their coming could be no such evil to the laboring classes as to justify its prohibition, while the opportunity it gives of conveying the ideas of a more civilized country in the heart of China is an advantage to the people of China of which (I said) I do not think it would be right to deprive them The only mode of immigration which I said I thought should be prohibited is the bringing over of Chinese as coolies under engagements to work for particular persons which is a form of compulsory labor, or, in other words of slavery I am, dear sir, yours very truly,

Why don't the Herald shy a thunderbolt or two in that direction?

A QUESTION FOR THE BOARD OF TRADE —The river pilots now complain of the sand bar at St. Helens as the worst place on some accounts, between here and Astoria The channel has at low water only about fifteen feet of water, being just the same depth as at Swan Island At the latter place the channel is now very near straight and is definitely marked out so that there is no chance for mistake The channel across the St. Helens bar runs diagonally across the river, from the Washington Territory side (going down) to the Oregon side and it is near two miles across the shallow water The trouble is that, in coming up, there are no land marks ahead which can be seen at night and thus vessels are liable to get out of the channel and to run aground, which they frequently do The detentions are unquestionably injurious to the trade of the city, and it would be a good investment for the city to expend about [illegible] in marking the channel The pilots say it can be done for that A few buoys are wanted in the channel and two ranges on shore It seems to be nobody's business to supply these, and thus the bar is likely to remain an obstruction If application were made to Congress it would probably be about two years before anything practical could be arrived at, and about the same time would elapse before anything could be done by the State The job is, therefore clearly left in the hands of the city or private enterprise Would it not be well for the Board of Trade to consider the matter and see what can be done?

FIRE ALARM AND DOGS FIGHT —About nine o'clock last evening there was a fire alarm which brought out the entire fire department, and a general stampede down First street took place No fire however could be found except in a street lamp As the crowd of about a thousand people was returning up First street, two or three ill-natured and pugnacious dogs got excited and went to fighting growling, snarling, snapping their teeth and towzling round among the biped legs in the very thickest of the multitudinous [illegible] As usual in such cases, everybody crowded forward anxiously, to see the highly moral and instructive exhibition, and in the rush side-walk signs got demoralized, several old corns got tramped out and several new ones tramped in, a "Chinee heathen" or two got upset for attempting to enjoy the strictly christian entertainment, and there was quite a general scrouge and hullabaloo, during which the street lamps twinkled serenely and the fire companies went to roll-call

PERSONAL —We learn from Mr Ostheim, of the old corner cigar store that he has recently received a letter from his brother, Mr P. S. Ostheim, representative from Oregon to the Grand Lodge I O O F of the United States, in which the writer says that he might be expected to arrive home in about three or four weeks from the date of the letter Two weeks have now elapsed and Mr Ostheim may therefore be looked for very soon He wrote from Baltimore We observe a paragraph in one of the Southern Oregon papers stating that Mr S J Day who went with Mr Ostheim, as a representative has already arrived at his home at Jacksonville

MORE THAN FULL —There are said to be but few houses to let in this city, and that a man who wants a cheap house is liable to meet with much difficulty in obtaining one. But we are not by any means so crowded as are the people of East Portland A gentleman who walked that burg over and over and through and through, yesterday informs us that there positively is not a house of any kind to be found empty and that several families are actually living temporarily in tents.

DELAYED —It was the intention of the Captain of the [illegible] to leave this port yesterday afternoon at high tide but up to dark the vessel was still lying at anchor off Clinton's Point. We learn that the pilot was under the belief that the vessel could not be got over the bar, and that she was in consequence detained How is it that the steamships have no difficulty in getting over the bar while the sailing vessels have so much trouble?

AGROUND —The bark [illegible] on the trip up Sunday ran aground on the sand bar at St Helens and still remains there The Captain came up to the city and got a permit from the Customs Collector Mr Hinman, to unload enough of her cargo upon barges to enable her to get off and cross the bar It was thought she would have to put out a hundred tons or more as she was drawing seven [illegible] feet of water

THE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE —We learned late last evening that the man Hermanson who attempted suicide at the Pearl saloon Sunday morning was still alive and with symptoms very much better than on the preceding evening It is now thought that with proper care he will probably recover

A HANDSOME PRESENT The [illegible] of this city contains a letter from Herr von Sydow President of the German Central Committee in Berlin acknowledging in feeling language the receipt of [illegible] thalers and [illegible] bergroschen from Portland for the wounded and widows of the present war

A WARNING —[illegible] Hand of the [illegible] announces that he will cheerfully and without charge publish notices of the birth marriage or death of any of his friends and fellow citizens We [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] has become soured and misanthropic

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The people of Vancouver have got a new excitement over a report that small pox is prevailing at Portland. Hope it won't hurt 'em much.

Two more prisoners were sent to jail yesterday for five days—one for contempt of the Police court and the other for disorderly conduct.

The man Dodge, brought down from Marion county yesterday, was indicted by the present grand jury for stealing a pair of horses, the property of Dr. Bybee.

The steamer Oriflamme will sail for San Francisco, at 4 o'clock P. M., Wednesday, Nov. 23d.

Messrs. Ferry & Russell have on exhibition some very fine onions from a "patch" on which it is said, grew this year, nine hundred and sixty bushels of that esculent. A right smart crap.

The missionary concert at East Portland, on Sunday, is reported to have been quite successful pecuniarily.

The Oriflamme brought up on her last trip some material for the railroad ferry boat. Her entire cargo was near six hundred tons.

Gov. Grover's Metropolitan Police Commissioners will hold a meeting this evening, at the Auditor's office.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORO FINO THEATER.—The "Hunchback" was played last evening to a fair and highly appreciative audience. The performance elicited rounds of applause, and it deserved richly all the applause given. The company, have not, during the entire season, played any piece with so fine spirit and finished acting as this. Mrs. Bates as the sylvan beauty, the unspotted, artless girl, was perfect. She was equally so as the city-taught and spoiled belle, and again as the true woman, constant to her first and only love. In the scene where as Julia she resisted with entreaties, prayers, and finally with the imperious will of a woman made desperate by the prospect of eternal separation from the man she loved and marriage to a man she abhorred, she gave a most excellent portrayal of the intensest of human passions. So powerfully wrought was the scene that she, with Mr. Bates and Mr. Vinson, who played Sir Thomas Clifford and Master Walter, respectively, was called before the curtain and given such a round of applause, as has not often been heard in Oro Fino Theater. Mr. Bates as Sir Thomas Clifford, was very good indeed, and Mr. Vinson's Master Walter deserves to rank among his greatest characters. He was very effective in the closing scene, and for that matter all the way through. Miss Cummings made her first appearance for the season, and played Helen in a lively and pleasing style. She has much improved since we last saw her on the stage. To-night for the first time in this city, the great nautical drama of "The Lonely Man of the Ocean," with new scenery, new properties, startling situations, striking and beautiful tableaux, etc.

THE GERMAN BALL.—The Independent German School Verein's party at the Turner Hall last night was a very pleasant affair. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The most pleasing affair was the singing, by a Miss Welser, of the "Flower Girl," during which the little girl disposed of a basket of flowers and realized quite a sum of money for the school fund.

The results of female journalism in New York are thus summed up: "Miss Hutchinson, the brilliant young reporter of women's movements for the Tribune, is about to be married to Clement C. Ford, of the World. Miss Eleanor Kirk, of the Sun, is engaged to Mr. Mortimer J. Doyle, of the Telegram. Miss Estabrooke, the blonde beauty of the Star, will be married this week to Mr. Judkins Tooley, of the Herald."

A young man got wet while hunting, and stood in front of the fire to dry with two pounds of powder in his coat tail pocket. When he went he took the door along with him, and he has more bumps on his head than any phrenologist knows of.

At J. O'Niel & Co's Clothing Store on First street, can be found as fine a collection of Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods as any place in the city, consisting of Coats, Pants, Vests, "Star Shirts," under-clothing, hosiery, collars, cuffs, ties, &c., &c., together with Boys' Suits and Clothes of all sorts of the best quality. They also make to order on short notice of home or foreign manufacture. Call and see their goods.

RETURNED.—Dr. J. F. Gibbon has returned from visiting the hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

B. L. STONE, at 107 Front street, has just received by last steamer and will continue to receive by every steamer, new lots of CLOCKS, WATCHES and elegant JEWELRY of every description, which he will continue to sell very cheap, having found that this policy of "small profits and quick returns" is the secret road to success. He is also prepared to do all sorts of repairing on the shortest notice.

The Summer is past and Autumn is here,
The finest season throughout the whole year,
But the days grow cool, and all must prepare
For warmer Clothing in Winter to wear.
Well, KOHN & FISHEL, of Clothing renown,
Have the best supply ever brought to town.
They have all sorts of coats and pants that will match,
That will last a whole year and not need a patch,
There are socks, vests and shirts and a thousand things more,
Which they offer you cheaper than ever before.
You all need the clothes and they need the tin,
Then get a new suit and let Winter go in.

THE QUESTION SETTLED.—Those eminent men, Dr. Jas. Clark, Physician to Queen Victoria, and Dr. Hughes Bennett, say that consumption can be cured. Dr. Wistar knew this when he discovered his BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, and experience has proved the correctness of his opinion.

THE GREAT ENIGMA.—A thousand guesses have been made at the ingredients of SOZODONT, the most wholesome and perfect dental purifier the world has ever seen. They were all wrong, so, by way of throwing a little light on the subject, it is now announced that the BARK, or inner bark of the QUILLAY SAPONARIA, the Soap Tree of the Valley of the Andes, is one of the components of that peerless dentrifice.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," useful and true.

"I was as Weak as a Baby," observed one of the young lady employees at Macy's dry goods store, "when I commenced taking PLANTATION BITTERS, and now I am on my feet from morning till night, without ever feeling over fatigued." This remark was made about six months ago to a pale, emaciated girl who was making some purchases at Macy's. "The hint was taken," says the young woman in a letter to the proprietors. "I began taking your Bitters the next day, and am happy to tell you that they have completely restored my health, strength and cheerfulness."

Departed Days.

Oh for memories of green and pleasant places,
Where happy birds their wood notes twitter'd low,
Oh, love that lit the dear, familiar faces
We buried long ago,

From barren heights their sweetness we remember
And backward gaze with wistful, yearning eyes,
As hearts regret, 'mid snowdrifts of December,
The Summer's sunny skies.

Glad hours that seemed their rainbow tints to borrow
From some illumined page of fairy lore,
Bright days that never lacked a bright to-morrow
Days that return no more

Fair gardens with their many blossomed alleys,
And red ripe roses, breathing out perfume,
Dim violet nooks, in green sequestered valleys,
Empurpled o'er with bloom.

Sunset that lighted up the brown-leaved beeches,
Turning their dusky glooms to glimmering gold;
Moonlight that on the river's fern-fringed reaches,
Streamed, white-rayed, silvery cold.

O'er moorlands bleak we wander weary hearted,
Through many a tangled, wild and thorny maze,
Remembering, as in dreams, the days departed,
The by-gone, happy days.

Novels and Religion.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Is it irreligious to write Novels? The piety or impiety of reading them would be decided by the answer to the question, and need not, not therefore be discussed by itself. But as observers necessarily of public matters, we have been a good deal pained to notice that more than one clergymen has "improved" the opportunity of Mr. Dickens's death to descant upon the exceeding wickedness of that gentleman in writing novels. One minister, in Boston, coupled in his sermon the names of Tom Paine and Mr. Dickens, both being equally infidel writers an insane folly at which, of course, we can afford to laugh. Turning to Webster, we find the definition of "Novel" to be "A fictitious tale in prose." Turning to the catalogue of the American Tract Society we find a great many "fictitious tales in prose." Remembering good Mrs. Hannah More, we recall "The Shepherd of Salisbury Plain," which is "a fictitious tale in prose." "The Illustrations of Lying," by that good woman, Mrs. Opie, is the same. But particular examples are needless. There is not a Sunday-school library in the land which is not full of "fictitious tales in prose," placed there with the sanction of the church and pastor. The Boston clergyman whose folly we have alluded to—he must have been thinking of Chadband and the Shepherd—if he will examine the Library of his own Sunday-school, he will find many "fictitious tales in prose." The Parables themselves—we say it with due reverence—are, in a purely rhetorical sense, fictitious works.

So much being undeniably true (and we are very moderate in our examples), it may justly be presumed that the clergyman's objection to the works which he denounced, was not to their "fictitious" form, but to their presumed irreligious spirit. The ridiculous comparison between their author and Tom Paine would seem to indicate that the novels in question, either directly or indirectly, inculcate a disbelief in the Saviour and in a future state. This leads us to believe that this pulpit critic has not read the works which he thus misrepresents; because, literally speaking, without euphuism, the statement is untrue, the conclusion baseless, and the fact quite the other way. In support of this we appeal to religious people who have read the books. Because Mr. Dickens denounced hypocrites, false guides, ranters, sanctimonious and ignorant blasphemers, does it follow that he was like Tom Paine? Are there no Chadbands? And if this Presbyterian preacher should come across a Chadband (as he may any day), would he fold the old canting humbug to his bosom and invite him to his pulpit? Why, really, he ought to be much obliged to Mr. Dickens for showing up the impostor in his true colors. Alas! he is not grateful at all, but exceedingly indignant. Is he ready to enter into a systematic defense of all the bad men who call themselves "Reverend?" If so, he will have his hands full and running over. There is no such thing as Protestant any more than Papal infallibility; and absurd general assumptions of the freedom of religion from the criticism of secular writers will only end in making new disbelievers, and confirming the old in their disbelief. To declare a similarity of character between the most popular writer of the day and a blaspheming sciolist is merely to fill the hearts of the disbelievers with fresh confidence. We protest against it, not only as slanderous, as barbarous, as offensive to taste, but we protest against its monstrous imprudence. It can only harden the hearts of men. It can only make error more complacent and skepticism more erratic. It is not and it can not come to good.

The world is becoming extremely intolerant of all forms of religious belief which are not the result of intellectual processes, and which will not bear the test of a pitiless logic. There is not a church in the world which is not riven by the two-edged sword of inquiry and demonstration. Science has no bowels of compassion. There is no gentle yielding in a Q. E. D. Profound historical research brings its results, and will not be quieted. Everywhere there is ferment, and doubt, and protest, until there seems to be danger that, for a season, the great truths of Christianity may no longer inform and influence the world's affairs. The assault is stormy—the defense must be found, not in the intellect but in the heart of man—in his tender affections, in his fervid imagination, in his love of the beautiful, in his conception of charitable duties and the Good Samaritan offices, in his profound realization of the worth and nobility and grandeur of love. His Christianity must be cultivated upon the æsthetical side of his character. He must be made to feel more of its beauties, and kindled to a diviner glow by a sense of its beneficent office. Otherwise, he will lapse into the rigidities of rationalism, plunge floundering into the quagmires of skepticism, or float helplessly upon the dull waters of indifference! And now, just at this supreme moment, when so much is to be won or lost, there are not wanting men ordained in the priesthood, men of most forms of profession, who would persist in feeding the race upon the dry husks of an outworn theology; who declare that a thing must be believed because it is impossible; who would guard the eyes of their flocks against the profane beauties of literature and art; and who do not see themselves now, for their own purposes, and we will say to their own exceeding great emolument, the ideal side of the human heart may be cultivated. Themselves dry and sapless, they do not see how efficient an auxiliary they may have in literature, and even in the literature of fiction. They cling to their ancient methods—folio and exegesis and hermeneutics and homilies—though these may turn and rend them!

RUNNING CONNECTICUT ALSO.—A New Haven paper has this:

Mr. Tweed it seems has been good enough to spare a moment from his arduous labors in governing New York to cast an eye over the border of Connecticut and select a candidate for Governor of this State. His choice has fallen upon Senator Woodward, who represented Tammany and the Twelfth district in the late General Assembly. Mr Tweed asserts that Mr. English will retire on his late victory, and that Woodward must go at the head of the ticket. He assures the Democracy of Connecticut that if this is done they can have all the money they want. We are inclined to think Mr. Woodward will first try his hand at running for Congress next April, since it is understood Mr Barnum is not anxious to return to Washington. The Democracy of Connecticut have reason to be proud of the interest Mr. Tweed takes in them. Hitherto they have always had candidates who were irreproachable as regards private character, but for the future they must content themselves with whoever "Boss" Tweed offers them.

EXTENDED BUSINESS.—Until lately the State official newspaper has only published the most important laws, those of a general nature. At the low remuneration offered it could not afford to publish the others, but since the new law has made the publication of them a fat job, we see that the special laws are also published. Such for instance as the act incorporating Jefferson, which cannot possess any importance except to the citizens of that place and the State Printer. Really, this Democratic idea of economy assumes very curious phases and very expensive ones. We shall keep an accurate account of how much Democratic legislation is costing the State, for the benefit of voters in 1872—Statesman.

LAND DEPARTMENT

OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned.

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd-numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands coterminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 10, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect. I. R. MOORES, 52tf dlaw Land Agent O. & C. R. R. Co., Salem.

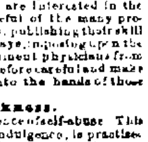
TO THE UNFORTUNATE

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals in Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, (Private Entrance on Commercial) San Francisco. Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. jy6d4ptf

THE RIVERSIDE

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON,

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened, and a large number of Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc., etc.:

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception, (the Portland Homestead Association,) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes, and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative, in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands, consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals—shareholders—and the advance in value of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them,) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales, over and above the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $800 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that everything is co-operative, and mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property, by some chance, should fall far below the first actual cost, which is hardly liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by cash for itself, but considering the steady and rapid advance on real estate in this neighborhood, and at East Portland and vicinity for the last year or two, it is not likely for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share, payable with the first installment, and liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the interest as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits arising from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month; so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 40 to 60 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland, is being rapidly discussed here among all classes, and one is already "Riverside," just south of East Portland—already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a trifle above the other prong of the H, but is yet forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the city, and the Willamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with light fir timber. A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, with an avenue between them, connects the main prong of the H (which has already been described) with that of the east. This last tract of land is in the valley, which is now under a high state of cultivation. Through its whole length runs a trout brook, the water of which is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the Association proposes to have water conveyed through pipes to every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.
